

Abstract of the Disclosure

Disclosed is a neutral beam source used for etching a semiconductor device. The neutral beam source includes a plasma chamber having quartz provided at an outer wall thereof with an RF coil, a grid assembly, a reflective member, and an electromagnet arranged around the plasma
5 chamber while surrounding the plasma chamber. Plasma density becomes high due to the magnetic field applied to the plasma chamber so that an amount of ion flux is increased.